

Reverse Outline

Paragraph 6:

What it does: Talks about COVID making streaming bigger and gives two different opinions about it - some economists think it's good, some critic (is this a credible source even) thinks it's bad for workers

Main point: Digital stuff is changing Hollywood but people disagree if it's good or bad

Connects to thesis: Connects to digitalization (appropriate to put at the end?)

Paragraph 5:

What it does: Says other countries give better tax breaks than California, so Newsom tried to fix it with $750 million but people think it won't work

Main point: California is losing to other places because of money/tax issues

Connects to thesis: This is the "desperate policy changes" part

Paragraph 4:

What it does: Shows actual numbers - 22% drop in filming, 18,000 jobs lost, companies going overseas

Main point: Here's proof Hollywood is leaving LA according to what others say

Connects to thesis: Shows the "decline" you talk about with real evidence

Paragraph 3:

What it does: Explains how the writers/actors strikes made everything more expensive, so companies started firing people

Main point: Strikes led to higher costs which led to layoffs

Connects to thesis: Relates to the unionized strikes

Paragraph 2:

What it does: Gives background about how Hollywood used to work with suburbs through prop houses and local workers

Main point: Hollywood used to be spread out in suburbs and employed local people

Connects to thesis: Sets up the contrast - shows what's being lost

Paragraph 1:

What it does: Starts with restaurant example, gives thesis

Main point: Hollywood leaving is hurting local businesses

Connects to thesis: Thesis is rather loose looking back

Problems:

Title could use some work: Title is okay for first draft I suppose

Lack of analysis: Could use more analysis from my part after quotes (stack the sandwich)

Repetitive stuff: Paragraphs 3 and 4 both talk about job losses and companies cutting costs - says the same thing twice

Too much in one paragraph: That last paragraph tries to cover both COVID impact AND two different expert opinions – not coherent (copy and pasted from integrating sources)

Jumpy organization: Goes from history to strikes to data to policy to digital - feels scattered

Weird connection: The digital part feels disconnected from the rest about geography and economics

How does this tie into suburbia? – Maybe find another source or two to really connect it

What to Fix:

1. Combine paragraphs 3 and 4 - merge the strikes stuff with the data stuff, cut out repeated info about layoffs
2. Split the last paragraph - separate COVID impact from the expert debate
3. Better transitions - connect the dots between strikes → costs → outsourcing → digitalization
4. Reorder maybe - put the data earlier to show how bad it is before explaining why

Revision Plan:

Basically make it flow better from: here's how it used to work → here's what went wrong → here's the proof it's bad → here's how Hollywood is responding. Right now it jumps around too much without a clear thesis either.

Better Outline:

- I. Intro - restaurant example, thesis
- II. How it used to work - prop houses, suburban network

III. What went wrong - strikes + costs + job losses + data all together

IV. Hollywood's response #1 - going overseas, tax competition

V. Hollywood's response #2 - COVID pushed digital streaming

VI. Digital debate - is this good or bad for workers?

VII. Conclusion - what this means for suburbs, wrap-up

Way cleaner and more logical flow.
